CAREER COMPASS in short...

“Career Compass” aims to support young adults in our communities to develop their career management and resilience skills for the post-pandemic society, and labour market. Specifically, it aims to improve the provision of lifelong guidance in our regions, and to enhance its integration into lifelong learning structures, by developing a suite of 40 micro-learning resources linked to the Scottish Career Management Skills Framework, and supporting the development of local synergies between education sectors.

Career Compass will develop a comprehensive delivery model for a new career planning intervention to support young adults who have left formal education, suffered pandemic-induced job losses or are currently in vulnerable employments. It will adopt an ab initio approach to developing these new resources at introductory and advanced levels. With goals for guidance service provision increasingly framed within overall lifelong learning policies of Member States, the model developed by Career Compass will be relevant and applicable beyond the initial target group and throughout the education and training landscape where guidance services are provided. The creation of synergies between education professionals and stakeholders across different sectors of education and training, including with VET, schools, and employment support services is a target, which all Career Compass partners aim to work towards.

CAREER COMPASS online kick-off meeting...

The online kick-off meeting of the project took place on the 13th of February 2023. All partners participated in this first event, introducing themselves and their organisations, starting a discussion on project development and fixing deadlines for the next tasks to be done.

The partners agreed on next steps and actions to be taken.

There will be a webinar on the 5th of May 2023, in order to present the learning outcomes and templates for the Professional Development Training for Adult Education and Guidance Professionals.
